THE SYSTEM IS PERFECT.

RESULT OF THE TEST OF THE PIPES IN THE PULITZER BUILDING.

President Wilson and the Commission Subjected the Plumbing and Drainage Pipes to an Enormous Pressure—Only Two Pinhole Leaks to Stop Up Were Found.

The plumbing and drainage pipes in the Pulitzer Building were yesterday subjected to the severest test that has ever been made in any building in the world, and they stood the test to perfection. The water pressure put on was enormous, and from roof to cellar only two pinhole leaks were discovered, which were speedily stopped up. When the test was over the pipes were absolutely perfect and there was not a weak spot in the whole system.

The examination was begun at 2 P. M. and was not finished till 6.30. It was conducted with the utmost thoroughness. The Commission consisted of President of the Board of Health, Charles C. Wilson, who climbed up fifteen ladders to the roof and personally investigated every one of the connections; John C. Collins, Chief Inspector of the Bureau of Plumbing and Ventilation; Mr. Rosenman, of the firm of Mead & Rosenman, who put in the plumbing; Mr. Mayhew, for the architect; George B. Post and representatives from the Sanitary Engineer and the Metal Worker.

All the connections for receiving the plumbing fixtures were in place when the water was turned on. Every inch of pipe in the building was filled. A 100-pound pressure was put on at 100 feet and the pumps throbbed like huge animals. Slowly, slowly the water was forced up 200 feet above the ground. President Wilson and Inspector Collins were on the top of the structure to meet it as it came. The experiment worked like a charm. The pipes at that moment were charged up to their opening into the roof. The Commissioners peered down into every crevice, and the level was found to be maintained in every pipe, proving that there was not a leak anywhere below.

The Commission then began the investigation of the plumbing. Every pipe is three-diameter of an inch thick, and there were twenty-five lines to be come over. By an excellent arrangement they rise up in straight lines from the cellar without twist or deviation. Each one of the 2,500 joints was gone over and the water outside were looked into. Every foot of the soil, waste, vent and rain-water conduits was also carefully inspected. The water was not a weak spot in the whole system.

The Pulitzer Building will be one of the finest and most perfectly appointed structures of the kind in the city, "he said as he was leaving. "Today we have subjected its plumbing to the severest test ever yet made and the pipes have stood it perfectly. Not one of them leaked, and the water was vaporized as it shot from the pipe. The plumbing represents the highest advances that have been made in sanitary construction and I leave it absolutely perfect."

SCHENCK'S FATAL MISTAKE.

He Might Have Been President Had He Stayed at Home.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Said an Ohio politician to the Western correspondent today: "The country seems never to have considered just how much his acceptance of that ill-starred mission to England cost Gen. Schenck. The whole move was strangely short-sighted for a man of his customary penetration, and was founded upon that absurdly false notion of the importance of a foreign post which some of the blindest of our public men have entertained. The truth is that Gen. Schenck should have remained in Congress, where he had grown to be a commanding figure, and where destiny was already working out higher things for him than could possibly be accomplished in any diplomatic station. Some of his best friends tried to dissuade him from leaving home. They pointed out to him that if he remained in the House only a few years more the Presidency itself would be in his grasp."

He was then only sixty years of age, and as he was not in the habit of smoking, he was the best equipped man in his party in Congress for public business, and as popular, as any man in the field, and being an Ohio man, he was at that time as strong in the friends of his party. Why not remain there, his friends asked him, and keep in the proper training ### at home for the great prize?

They did not think he would have to wait longer than 1870. They estimated that Gen. Grant would secure a second term, and then, as they reasoned, Gen. Schenck would be nominated without serious opposition.

Gen. Schenck was very much impressed with the argument. He could see its force and, naturally enough, strong and popular as he was, he was ambitious to be President. In the end the brilliant leader that Gen. Grant held up won him and he went abroad and soon disappeared from the lists under the joint influences of absence and misfortune. The Presidential fight came off as predicted, by Schenck's friends. After the two terms of Grant the Western Republic was divided into two rival parties, one party leader, and what would have been Schenck's opportunity proved to be that of another Ohio man, Grant's rival, and less capable and less worthy in every way.

"It was not the opinion of Gen. Schenck that only for the moment. His affair might have been his party's candidate in 1870."

"No," he realized that his first mistake, so far as his political fortunes were concerned, was in leaving the country. By that act he lost touch with the organization, the party managers, and so in a certain sense became a stranger to the influence of the great general, and so in a certain sense became a stranger to the influence of the great general, and so in a certain sense became a stranger to the influence of the great general."

Princeton Athletes Lured. Princeton, N. J., March 25.—A meeting of all the prominent athletes of Princeton College was held this afternoon in the gymnasium. Sixty men were present, and addresses were made by Prof. Henry F. Osborne, Trainer Robinson and Capt. Doling about the best practical methods of raising the student to active work and of training. It was stated that Princeton would send to the intercollegiate games at Berkeley Oval fully thirty men, instead of merely sending champions as hitherto. There is a substantial chance of success, but the men must begin to work at once if they expect to accomplish anything. A meeting of what has been called the "Princeton Club" was held this afternoon and it was decided to change the name to the Princeton Athletic Club. A. Adams, J. S. Sargent and J. C. Williams, of the Princeton Club, were present. A. Adams, J. C. Williams, of the Princeton Club, were present. A. Adams, J. C. Williams, of the Princeton Club, were present.

BERLIN AND THE KAISER.

New Appointments—Festivities in Honor of the Prince of Wales.

BERLIN, March 25.—Evening papers state that after the British Ambassador's banquet last night Count Herbert Bismarck had a heated discussion with the Emperor, and again asked for permission to retire. Herr von Alvensleben, now German Minister to Belgium, will succeed Count Herbert Bismarck as Imperial Foreign Minister.

Gen. Count von Waldersee, Chief of the Imperial Staff, has started from Berlin on another visit to Italy.

Prince Bismarck will leave Berlin for Friedrichshagen on Thursday. All the Generals of the army stationed in Berlin and the vicinity have paid him farewell visits.

King Humbert, Emperor Francis Joseph and Count Kalnoky have all written to Prince Bismarck expressing deepest regret at his resignation.

Count William Bismarck, the younger son of Prince Bismarck, has resigned the Presidency of the German Imperial Bank.

The resignation of Count Herbert Bismarck has been accepted and Herr von Alvensleben has been appointed to succeed him as Imperial Secretary for Foreign Affairs. A State concert was given this evening in honor of the English royal visitors. The house, Professor of English Literature and History in Dickinson College, has resigned, and has been appointed Superintendent of the Methodist Hospital of Philadelphia. It is thought that Prof. Little, of Brooklyn, will be selected for the position made vacant.
